The Devils Web 3 Mary

No one stirs the heart and imagination like Mary Balogh. In this classic novel, the New York Times bestselling author weaves a spellbinding tale of two people haunted by desire, unable to resist the love that has become their most passionate obsession. When James Purnell walks into the London drawing room and sees Lady Madeline Raine, time

Of the three novels, "The Devil's Web" was the most difficult to like. The hero is dark, tortured and brooding; the heroine beautiful and perhaps a little spoiled. Neither can explain the attraction they feel toward each other. Madeleine has been pulled into relationships in the past because of her need to heal wounded men.

Mary Balogh is, for me, the current best writer of Regencies (although Georgette Heyer was, of course, the utter master). Balogh's writing career has spanned several decades and this book, along with the previous two in the series ('The Gilded Web' and 'Web of Love') were originally published in the early 1990s and have now been reissued.
