The Great Gatsby, Chapters 1-3. Why does the author choose to set the story of the novel as a flashback? And why does he choose to make Nick Carraway the narrator? " Gatsby " is created as a flashback at least partially to allow the narrator time to reflect on what happened, and how he feels about it; he chooses Nick to narrate because he was there, and yet apart from everything at the same time, giving us both a first-person narrative and a somewhat-more-objective viewpoint of the story.
