story about accepting the people we love — the people we have to love and the people we choose to love, the families we're given and the families we make. It's the story of two women adrift in New York, a widow and an almost-orphan, each searching for someone she's lost.

There is an Arabic proverb that almost perfectly describes this frustrating situation: "Bukra fil mish-mish", meaning "[you can have] apricots tomorrow". The logic is that apricots are only delicious right after picking as they become grainy and mushy by the next day. It's basically a nice way of saying "it's impossible, so let it go".
